Tha Mr Munters Grave may be found by Inquiring the burying place of the white Inhabitants which you approach from the Taeon Road the Grave is on the other side of the fence of the first family yard next the Road the man that buryed mine goes by the name of Abram.

May 2d 1845 Henry Munter Arived at Tahita Left found the grave of his dear Brother had been Covered with trees and the yard had not the appearance I Expected to see now had it to Master who had been their several years and after leaving there I saw the Man that buried him and attended him in his last sickness the house he died in has been torn down and Mr Funck have got a long block of building on the same land all I can say it is a fine pleasant place to live in if one could have his friends and relatives by his side

The Sailors Thoughts of Home while at Sea

I have a home on Land, a humble one and low—yet there my kindest dearest friend, remembereth me. I know.
and she will teach in accents meek, our Boy, his fathers name to speak.

It often in my thoughts, that quiet home and pair and some times in my dreams I see.
the baby sleeping there, and tears that fall to his mothers, Eye gushed, when I bid them wealth good by.

Amid the lonely watch, at midnights solemn hour when the strong waves go rushing by, in their resistless power I hear a whisper from the foam, "O, Sailor! Sailor! welcome home."

Upon their home I muse, when awful billows roar and often breathe an Earnest Prayer To See their face once more; where, wraped in shades dreamy stand the Green hills of my native Land.

The Beggar Boy's Basket

Oh, will it my Sister Jean his Brothers all like him are gaunt, and Sisters too, Then do not Jean to Choak the Gaping mouth of want.

fill up his basket quick and high the tears Lay in his sickly Eyes poor wretched, ragged, beggar Boy he scarce can thank the more, for Joy.

The basket's heavy, what of that, his heart is light the heads not his feet Cold and bare, poor brat, but this has always been his Lot.

he trudges on on tiptoe to steal quick glances at the dainty meal and then his pouting lips do kiss, the heart that pitied his distress.

At home how will the meagre ones clutch at those broken bits of bread how will they banquet on those bones like ravens hastening on the dead a dainty stomach would refuse such food, but beggars cannot Choose they relish what the rich condemn and hunger makes the coarse pass them ah, sister, when the beggar boy returns think still on hungers pains listen his little heart with joy and fill his basket up again - who pities wretchedness, does melt but who relieves it doth Excell then ever let the Common Ends of misery find in the a friend.

Mary Slater

I left my friends and all things dear away I went to sea.
And while I'm on the Ocean deep my Sister Prays for me

Find that the Prayers of one dear friend be breathed in vain for me me for the Past I'll make amends now with the rite agree

Sailors farewell to his Mother.

Fare well my dear Mother.
In sorrow I leave you;
To leave my dear parent,
it grieves my heart sore; but Oh, dear Mother
don't let this grieve you, Though tempest & roaring and the loud billows roar.

Soon to meet each one the other side

My native Land

Though joys in other Climes be found Their purer joys at home and tho the world might wander round in distant Climes might roam

But never to my soul be Known upon a foreign Strand the peace the hope the pride I own in this my native Land

Though other fields be as green and other Skies as bright and other faces fair be seen and hearts be found as true

Oh, be it ruled by mildest rule or ravaged by Cruelty's hand with joys with pride what'er betide I'll claim my native Land

A Sisters Love.

How Constant than the evening star which mildly beams above than tenderness, than dearer far a Sisters gentle Love

Gem of the heart! lifes gift divine Engendered as from above glad offerings at affections shrine a Sisters Holy Love!

Sailor on leaving his Mother

Farewell my dear Mother,
'tis known I leave you
To leave my dear parent,
It grieves my tender love;
But O my dearest Mother,
don't let this grieve you, Though tempests should rage
and the loud billows roar.

Farewell my dear Mother our Ship is now ready, with the fairest winds & duty it doth call for me, so farewell dear Mother I'll think on thee only, Though far, far away, on the tempestuous sea.

Though twice this world round should this end me ever; Though the wide waste waters between us should be, yet there's my dearest Mother. let this thought relieve you your sons, though at far distant still thinks of you them.

Continued

Then adieu, dearest Mother, dispell those sad fears, though we should meet never,
on Earth any more, yet look to unite to Jesus in heavenly devotion, that we shall soon meet in Canaans blessed shore.

Peruse these few lines and remember who penned them remember his sons but whereas he his grave, still trusts in the Saviour, the friend of the sinner who is strong in his arm, and mighty to save.

My Mother, voice! how often creeps On Cadence on my lonely ears!
Like Floating scent on wings of sleep or dew to the unconscious flowers.
I might forget her melting prayers, while pleasures pulses madly fly, but in the Still, unbroken air, her gentle tones come stealing by, and years of sin and manhood flee, and leave me at my Mother's knee.

The book of nature, and the print of beauty on the whispering sea, Fairs still to me some lineament of what I have been taught to be, my heart is harder and perhaps my manliness has drunk up tears, and there's a mildew in the lapse of a few ~~years~~ miserable years, by natures book is known yet. by all my Mothers lessons wrote.

The Welcome Back

Sweet is the time that brings us home where all will joying to meet us; when hands are stirring as we come, to be the first to greet us. when the world hath spent its pennies and urn, and Care been busy pressing: tis sweet to turn from our roaming paths and find a fireside blessing Oh, Joyfull dear is the homeward tracks if we are but sure of a welcome back

Yet do we walk on a dreary way though lonely and benighted, if we know their are lipes to chide our stay and Eyes that will beam love lighted? what is the wealth of your diamond ray, to the flame that flashes pleasure; when the world is welcome back to stay, we form a heavenly Chief Treasure? oh Joyfull dear is our homeward tracks
if we are but sure of a welcome back,

An Evening Thought

If sometimes in the dark blue Eye, or in the deep red wine, or soothed by gentlest melody, Still warms the heart of mine a Something Colder in the Blood and Calmer in the Hair have whispered that my youthful flood Ebbs not to flow again.

If by Helvetian azure lake, or arna[illegible] yellow stream Each Star of memory could awake as in my first young dream, I know that when mine Eyes shall greet the hill side bleak and bare, that girded my home it will not meet my Childhood's sunset there

Alas! the morning dew is gone. gone Ere the fault of day; Life's iron fetters still is on its wreath of Fame away Hope if still some Cloud hovers Can warm the fading shrine To soon to Chill beyond the power of love, or song, or wine, H. Martin

Weep not For the Dead

Oh why should we mourn - when the young and the good all go down to the grave in their youth? they pass from allurement and sin to the bright land of beauty and truth; 'Tis only a weakness but hard to overcome — and though clouds rush thy one shine while we are decaying and passing away thou to them it was Constant & true —

Their souls, like the perfumes of roses ascend, while the clouds of affliction are shed, and the rallying ^ guards the Paradise throng bear them up from a suffering land! while we weep are their mouldering bodies laid down and discharged the last tribute of love they are calmly consigning their tokens of love from the realms of perfection above.

They soon will descend To Embrace us again when the Light of our lives lies mouldering and bear us aloft in the Clouds of the sky.
To Exist with the Cherubim Choir, O Leave them To murmur for the young and the good who have Early gone down To the tomb, like paradise flowers perennial and fresh, They have risen in perfection To bloom.

Lines addressed by a sister to her Brother about leaving Home for a 3 years Whaling Voyage

Must I Have Leave my much beloved Brother must I me bid the sad farewell must I Thus Leave the Land that love thee in a Strange Land to dwell.

Tender are the ties that bind us deep love, fountains in my heart hopes and fears together mingle at this hour when we must part.

When I think I distant be from dwellings Tearing the world forgetful frowns time and absence only lighten a pond sisters ardent love

One favour would I ask of Thee before again we part that I Though would'st still impart to me the joys and sorrows of thy heart

Still would I sympathise with Thee in all thy hopes and fears thy pleasure fill my breast with joy thy Griefs mine Eyes with tears

When Eve at Evening Close I bend the knee in prayr thom brother will I ask for thee high heavens most tender Care I'll ask that friendship love and hope may in thy pathway smile that faithfull friends be ever near thy sorrows to beguile

I'll ask mid Each Tuesday morn That this Salvation world portrays That virtue pure may flourish as it has done in younger days

I'll ask piety may shed It's Cheering beams on thee I'll ask what I will be thy lot That Though will remember me
